FALSE ALARM. Had the North Warren Volunteer firemen been aware these two large bon fires had been started in the woods off Follett Run rd. Sunday evening, it would have saved them a trip up the hill when a concerned resident of the section turned in an alarm.

The giggles of persons thinking the dry run funny were swallowed graciously by the firefighters.

INSPECT LOOT. Warren County police officials last Thursday inspected part of the loot taken by a pair of Grand Valley men and their 17-year-old girl accomplice from approximately 40 camps in a four-county area including Warren. Admitting to the burglaries were Charles Allen, 38, and Albert Mylo Robishaw, 23. Along with the girl, both pleaded guilty to the charges and are awaiting court.

CHECKS ARE ROUGH. Texas Lunch third sacker Louie Check took three consecutive hot grounders and fired to brother Warnie (r.) at first to put Culligan's 1-2-3 in the first inning of Monday night's City Softball league contest. Hud Berdine is the runner.

After taking an early lead the Texans lost 16-8 in the crucial battle.

BEST in the Kinzua Valley Golf Course Amateur tourney staged last Sunday was Joey Brindis. He slammed a five over par 77 to win the top flight.

CONGESTION. The intersection you see is where the old highway meets the three-lane at Venturetown north of Warren.

The situation you see is a common one, especially when operators park their vehicles (see arrow) in the middle of the road and halfway into a one-way intersection.

A few bumped fenders and bruised pedestrians may remove this dangerous situation, if nothing else.

FOUR CANADIAN young men escaped serious injury about 7:20 a.m. Saturday, August 24, when the car in which they were riding failed to negotiate the curve at Lily Pond west of Warren on Route 6 and landing near exit of the Whiteway Drive-In Theatre.

The operator of the car, Man Cameron, 22, of Winnipeg, was proceeding west when he lost control of the vehicle which rolled over the guardrails on the left side of the road and landed right side up at the bottom of an embankment.

A similar mishap occurred at the same spot at 1 a.m. the following morning.

PUBLIC EVENTS

A FIREFIGHTERS' HEYDAY is to be held by the newly formed Warren Rescue, Inc., at War Memorial Field in Warren Saturday, September 21. Activities for the 30 fire departments from Warren and Chautauqua counties that will take part are scheduled to begin at 1 o'clock.

Among events to take place will be a water battle, tug of war, greased pig chase, ladder climb, and slipper pole climb.

Admission will be 50 cents for adults and 25 cents for children.

ATTENTION. . . . Holders of exchange tickets or passes for the Passion Play, which will be held at Warren's Beaty auditorium September 8, 9 and 10, are urged to redeem them at once for actual reserved seat ducats.

This can be done at the play headquarters located in the old Columbia Theatre lobby, where tickets can also be purchased at a cost of $2.20 or $3.30 for adults and 50 cents for students.

Of special concern to the reserved seat ticket holders is the code number indicating the performance their ticket is good for. If your ducat has the code number "6", it is for Sunday afternoon; "7", Sunday evening; "8", Monday evening; and "9", Tuesday evening.

The Warren Junior Chamber of Commerce is sponsoring the appearance of the Passion Play. It will be playing for the first time in this country by the Oberammergau group.

SOMETHING NEW. . . . and beautiful will be added to the Woman's Club Flower Show when it is staged at the club auditorium from 2 to 10 p.m., Thursday, September 5.

In addition to the usual decorations this season there will be four large displays arranged by area nursery and tree people, as well as a real fountain in the center of the auditorium floor.

This year's show has been expanded over previous years to encourage more persons in the area to enter. There are 500 prize ribbons.

JUVENILE DELINQUENCY FIGURES AREN'T ENOUGH

A release from the VFW mentions that about 11 per cent more young people were arrested in the state and in the nation in 1956 than were in 1955. The VFW says it is strengthening its youth activities and will join with others in coping with this menace. It also says that about 11 per cent of national arrests involve young people under 18, most of whom steal cars or other property.

This figure does not tell the real story. And we fail to see why people wait to look at the court record before they act. You cannot measure juvenile delinquency by the number of boys and girls who face the judge.

If you are going to estimate the degree of delinquency by young people who kick the law around, visit the police station, and stay there a few nights. When we were doing the police run, and a few others, seven days a week, the officers were doing plenty of running after a large variety of calls every night. And the majority of them involved young people.

That eleven per cent figure is a phoney if we ever saw one. Before the last war we had figures based on Warren alone, which is paradise compared with many cities, and the time spent by the officers on cases involving young people far exceeded all the others combined. We suspect it still does.

Nearly every series of robberies that is cleaned up in this area involves defendants who either are juveniles or just grew out of that stage. Those who just grew out often have been mixed up in trouble previously.

How many criminals have been before our judge lately who could be called adults? The fact is that criminal cases, and court generally, have ceased to take up much trial time or newspaper space. This is not an area with much crime involved, but we do have officers and they do seem to keep busy.

When they get to the end of the trail there usually is a juvenile there, and most of the time you don't hear about it. For every one that is hauled into court there are many who are scolded and turned over to their parents. No one who has been hep to what has been going on needs a 11 per cent increase in 1956 to reveal the facts.

WHAT IS A DELINQUENT?

That word "delinquent" perhaps should be cleared up, or dropped. We often suspect that many who debate the juvenile problem are not placing the same meaning on the word and actually are very far apart in their subject.

We work very hard at keeping young people from becoming criminals. But do they have to be a criminal to be a delinquent? Do adults have to have criminal records before they can be classified as delinquents?

A delinquent to us is one who is a potential criminal if his ways are not mended. He may be rebelling against parental control; he may defy society and refuse to abide by its time-proved customs. He may ignore the moral law and cause others to do the same. He has the makings of a poor citizen, a destructive member of society, and even a potential criminal.

You need not steal to exhibit a lack of respect for the rights of others. You need not kill to take away the life of another.

We would say that a boy or girl of high school age who is finding enjoyment in drinking, carousing, and immoral pleasures is a delinquent. But the word "delinquent" we do not like. We are more inclined to believe we have a youth problem, and always have had one.

The problem has enjoyed a natural growth. It was easier to cope with a few generations back. Today life is faster in many respects; subjects of an adult nature are more openly discussed, dramatized, and lived.

A few years ago the boys and girls sneaked copies of the Police Gazette or a lewd book out behind the barn and giggled through the pages. Today they can visit most newsstands and find many magazines and paper-covered books that would make yesterday's "exciting" literature look tame.

Television, the movies, and the stage openly provide a rapid and disordered "education" that contributes much adult knowledge to many not sufficiently equipped with a mature sense of responsibility for coping with what they think they "know".

* CITIZEN PROBLEM

We don't just have a youth problem. We have the problem of making better men and women. We want a better community, a better nation, and a better world. We must start with better citizens.

Our measure of our failure cannot be the number of young people who are placed before the court. Our measure is how many of them are offering a problem as individuals. And we in Warren county find that there are enough of them to justify a probation organization, the purpose of which is to keep their names off the police blotter and direct them toward a law-abiding life after they have taken at least one turn in the wrong direction.

Some judge has been quoted as saying that the VFW of Pennsylvania is doing a splendid job in the youth field because it has 3,000 boys in baseball and 20,000 in marble tournaments. Well, Warren has a thousand boys in baseball and we don't know how many playing marbles, but we still have a problem, and we still have girls to be considered. It will require community-wide programs that encompass far more than baseball and marbles to do anything about this one.

And as we often have written, our

THE PUBLIC'S LETTERS OFTEN HELP F.T.C.

(Following is a release from the Federal Trade Commission concerning letters written to it by the public. Much good can be done if such letters are written informatively and for the right reason.)

"Unfair and fraudulent business practices are coming under a sharper public eye."

Letters of complaint to the Federal Trade Commission increased 32 percent during the past year, from 2,811 to 3,625. Of these, 2,500 came from people who believed they had been duped or cheated, and 1,125 were from firms charging their business rivals with competing unfairly.

Analyzing the increase in complaining letters, FTC Chairman John W. Gwynne declared: "We have reason to believe the increase is due largely to a greater public awareness of the protection given by the laws we enforce. The press, in reporting the news and significance of FTC cases during the year, has contributed much to this awareness."

Nearly 80 percent of the Commission's cease and desist orders result from letters of complaint

(the FTC calls them "applications for complaint"). The rest of the orders stem from information received from Congress, other governmental agencies, Better Business Bureaus, and from investigations initiated by the Commission. (The Commission never reveals the identity of individual or corporate petitioners for complaint.)

"The public provides the Commission with its most effective eyes and ears," says Harry A. Babcock, Director of the FTC's Bureau of Investigation. "As the victims of illegal practices, the members of the public provide us not only with specific information on new violations of the law but also help us check on whether our previous orders are being violated."

The letters from the public could be even more effective, Mr. Babcock says, if the writers would offer more specific information. For example, it was a wasted postcard from a woman in North Carolina who scribbled that "the store" where she shopped was guilty of false advertising and "would the FTC look into it."

"People writing their complaints to us," Mr. Babcock points out, "must give the exact name of the company and the product involved. We need to know how the product is advertised. If newspaper advertisements are used, the complainant should include a copy of the ad in his letter. If the complaint stems from claims made by a door-to-door salesman, we should be told in specific detail how the salesman allegedly misrepresented his product. We need the same facts if the advertising is on radio or television."

The Commission must determine whether the company is doing business in interstate commerce since its authority to take action depends on this fact. While the public often will not know this, specific detail of advertising will help a Commission attorney make his own determination.

Ordinarily complainants should not send the Commission important personal documents or property, yet letters the public receives from companies advertising their products fall in the general category of advertising and should be included.

"Among the erroneous impressions the public has," says Sherman R. Hill, the Commission's Chief Project Attorney, "are that the Commission can help the individual in his private controversy with merchants, can get his money back on a bad purchase, or can require performance on a guarantee. The Commission has no power to arbitrate personal claims. All we can do is investigate the matter, and if action is warranted by the public interest, we stop the seller from making future misrepresentations."

Analyzing the 60-odd letters received each week, Mr. Hill uses "public interest" as a guide in his determination whether to assign a complaint letter to an attorney for further investigation.

Often, Mr. Hill says, a single letter of complaint must be filed with only a letter of acknowledgment. Yet, the complaining letter is not forgotten. If enough of them are received to reveal a significant degree of misrepresentation by a company, then all letters are assigned to an attorney for investigation.

A recent example involved a company contracting with small-town civic clubs to publish cookbooks for them in return for their help in soliciting advertising from the local merchants. A letter arrived at the FTC complaining that the company was not furnishing the books. It was filed without action. Similar letters followed -- from small towns all over the country. The pattern of misrepresentation became apparent, and the Commission instituted proceedings resulting in the issuance of a cease and desist order against the company based on a finding it was engaging in a "monumentally fraudulent racket." "The value of letters calling fraud to our attention, even if they are incomplete, cannot be overemphasized," said Mr. Hill.

These letters have an additional value to the Commission in its enforcement of orders. The FTC Act, gives the Commission authority to bring suit in Federal Court against firms which continue making false claims after the Commission has ordered them to stop. The Commission can ask the courts to assess, as much as a $5,000 fine for each separate violation.

Many times the Commission is notified that a company is violating its order by a letter from some member of the public who, though unaware of this order complains he has been misled. Even in this work, where the Commission continues periodically to check compliance with its orders, as many as one-half of the civil penalty suits result from public complaint.

For some, a letter to the Commission is a convenient way to "let off steam." One woman wrote long ago complaining, not of any specific practice, but because she was "sick of the constant high pressure of selling that surrounds (her family) continuously."

Another correspondent noted a newspaper story that the Commission was investigating the high price of coffee. His gripe, he said, was not the price but the flavor. "Oh, for a taste of the coffee that was sold when I was young!" he lamented.

For the Commission to have jurisdiction there must be the sale of a product or service, a fact often overlooked by those writing in. For example, the Commission could do nothing to assist the man who complained that his local newspaper would not print his letters to the editor.

Another typical misunderstanding is that the Commission puts some seal of approval on business firms. Many letters are from people wanting to deal with a company but who, before doing so, write in to ask the Commission if it's "a good company." The Commission does not have the authority to give or withhold any such approval.

Many letters the Commission receives are from people who complain to the Commission not to have their private matters settled but because they are interested in doing public good.

Such a person was a retailer in Florida who had purchased for resale a large shipment of a special kind of chewing gum. He found the deal had been misrepresented to him and that he had paid for a quantity of unsalable goods. In his letter to the Commission he said:

"I am stuck with the gum, which is probably as much my fault as the manufacturer's. The purpose of this complaint is not to cry on your shoulder. I will eventually work out of it . . . but the real essence is to try and stop him advertising for salesmen to dump his product on . . . If I can save someone who cannot afford a loss of this kind, I will have done some good."

GRADUATED INCOME TAX

A study has been authorized which may make it possible to do something about Pennsylvania's antiquated tax and debt system. The legislature at the recent session approved a non-partisan commission to study and recommend revisions in Pennsylvania's constitution, which some call the "Constitution of 1873".

This is a very good description for a constitution that is so out of date that it handicaps communities, counties, and the state in their financing, and forces them to use uneconomical methods and levy unequal taxes. Examples of both are the authorities and property taxes.

The authorities were created to get around the debt limitation. At present prices no town can finance a building or even a fair-sized paving program with a straight bond issue. The limitation is so low that schools, sewage plants, and other facilities would cost more than the allowed bond issue.

At the same time we are looking for tax means that will be equitable and the constitution does not allow a graduated levy. All, rich and poor, pay the same rate. This straddles us with the property tax which is supposed to make the wealthy pay more than the low of income. But does it?

Two men can have the same income and pay far different taxes. They may enjoy the same community privileges, same fire and police protection, same sewer facilities, same streets, same schools. Yet their taxes may not be at all the same.

One may choose to put all of his income into his home, which might cost him twenty thousand dollars. The other may choose to place his money in non-taxable bonds and live in a small bungalow, which might cost him as little as six or seven thousand dollars.

Their income is the same, they enjoy the same privileges. But their tax loads are far apart. Is this fair?

A revision of the constitution might make available several graduated taxes, including an income tax, the fairest of any known to tax authorities. And it should lift the bonded indebtedness limit so that the state, counties, and communities can provide facilities without going through the creation of an authority.

HIGH-PRICED TV

What television program costs the most? An unofficial estimate places Playhouse 90 at the top with a price of $150,000. The Perry Como show runs about $100,000. So do the Shower of Stars, Climax, the Chevy show, and Frank Sinatra.

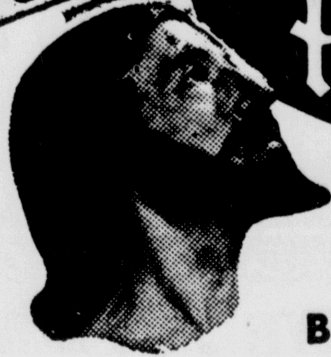

The Maverick and Cheyenne each cost between $80,000 and $90,000. Also around the $80,000 figure are such shows as Disneyland, The Big Record, Wagon Train, the Ed Sullivan Show, Steve Allen, George Gobel, and Perry Mason.

Jack Benny? $65,000! Phil Silvers, $40,000. Wyatt Earp, $40,000. Tennessee Ernie, $65,000. Alfred Hitchcock, $50,000. Lawrence Welk, $50,000 for each program.

Now you will wonder how much these big sounding give-away shows cost. As our television and radio editor has told you, they are the

BAT BITES

A bat won't hurt you if you leave him alone. In fact he can't do you much harm if you stick your finger in his mouth. That is, if you measure harm by the blood a tooth draws. But bats can carry rabies. And the slight puncture his tiny tooth might cause could be dangerous. See a doctor.

THIS IS MUSIC?

What this nation needs is not a five cent cigar. It could use a disc jockey who knows the facts about the top recordings of the week. Knowing the facts he wouldn't misname them. And that would be nice!

What makes them the most popular? Juke box activity! And who plays the juke boxes? They're not budding Bernstein's. Popularity also is based on record sales.

Everyone but disc jockers knows that the young fry buy the bulk of the records and put most of the silver in juke boxes. But unfortunately for radio listeners, few but disc twirlers put platters on music programs.

The result is that the predominant majority of people who enjoy good music are harrassed by the immature native chants that keep young blood hopping, and to which it is very welcome. But it is not the most popular music.

Proof of which is Mr. Welk. He puts together a group of good musicians, stays away from rock, rock, rock, and long hairs, and the public loves it. He has proved the point of many, dumbfounded the so-called smart music boys, and is making what it takes to pay income taxes.

If the youngsters want to shake their sideburns with a jungle beat and a Neanderthal hop, may their ears endure, but let's call it by the right name and edit that "top tune" herring out of the continuity.

And for those who really like and appreciate music the hope is that the upshot will be from rock, to Welk, to Bach.

Kefauver Reveals Public Opinion

By Thomas L. Stokes

WASHINGTON -- There is a miracle of sorts at work in our politics today that could be classed, with some literary license, among the fables of the country boy against the city slickers.

Though Senator Estes Kefauver, the lanky guy out of Tennessee, is not exactly the country-boy type, he can be made to fit the part and serve our purposes because of the contrasts and circumstances in this tale of three men.

The contest, that is, with two younger men who are running like mad, and like Madison Avenue, for President. To wit, a Republican, Vice President Richard M. Nixon, and a Democrat, Senator John Kennedy of Massachusetts, who was nosed out by Senator Kefauver for the Vice Presidential nomination at last year's Chicago Democratic convention. Messrs. Nixon and Kennedy are in the glamour class, certainly. The miracle is that the Tennessee mountaineer is running ahead, if slightly, of both the younger men in Dr. Gallup's popularity poll for President, though he is by now old hat at this running-for-President business and might be considered an also-ran after two times out. In trial runs against the Vice President and Senator Kennedy he was the winner.

Senator Kefauver is doing this all on his own, by himself, just tending to his knitting here. The other two, as we know, have at their command the modern techniques for building up personality, the copywriters and photographers, that now are available in our more widely circulated slick magazines, as well as the support of powerful persons, in each instance, of wealth and influence.

To have Senator Kefauver getting along as well as he is on his own is consoling to those who abhor this new age of synthetic creation of figures in our politics. It has become a new industry in our country. Among its services is to "tailor," as the expression is, an ambitious candidate so that he can be generally pleasing. The result is a "character" for politics sake that sometimes does not bear much resemblance to the original as he has been known.

If you know anything about our politics today, particularly as it is affected by powerful economic interests, you would know that no big magazine or advertising company is likely to do anything to build up Estes Kefauver. He is not likely to be found on the cover of any magazine nor the subject of the familiar build-up essays inside.

The trouble with him is that he has been curious about the wrong subjects, and that has put him in the class of the country boy whom certain powerful interests want to stay in the country, or at least not near the White House.

For example, he is anathema to the utilities, among other big interests. To their way of thinking, Estes Kefauver has devoted too much of his time and talents in his career in House and Senate in promoting TVA and in trying to protect it, and in support of other public power projects. During the Eisenhower Administration the task of the Tennessee Senator and others has been the more desperate chore of trying to save from actual destruction this great conservation project in the Southeast which has been copied all over the world.

Senator Kefauver has spent too much time, so far as the utilities are concerned, in exposing such gimmicks as the notorious Dixon-Yates deal cooked up in the Eisenhower Administration to cripple TVA, and in showing how those full-page advertisements in so many magazines by the utilities aimed at public power projects are paid for by you, the consumer and/or sucker, in your electric bills. In short, you are financing their propaganda.

The Tennessee Senator likewise has exposed how electric utilities paid dividends to their stockholders from tax savings they got through tax write-offs allowed by the government under the guise of being "defense" industries. One of the last things that Secretary of Treasury George M. Humphrey did before he left here was to explain how the rest of us have to make up through our income taxes the reductions achieved by utilities and other corporations in such special tax benefits. They postpone tax reduction for the rest of us, he said.

Of late Senator Kefauver has been conducting an investigation into monopolistic practices, especially as they relate to inflation and the cost of living which is still soaring higher every month. Somehow the Kefauver story, which is a continuation of what the folks learned when he was all over the country in his primary campaign for the Democratic Presidential nomination, must be getting through to the folks. That is the only way you can explain how, strictly on his own, he is out-running in the Gallup polls the two younger men who have so much going for them in the way of build-ups.

LEAVE US SOMETHING

(While John Crosby is on vacation, his column will be conducted by guest writers.)

It is said, perhaps apocryphally, that there is no fan in the world like a Giant fan. They are loyal, steadfast, and true blue. If Willie can't hit and Antonelli can't pitch, and the hot dog business at the Polo Grounds can be covered by only one jar of mustard, the genuine fan still remains faithful. Well, I am that way about the Jints and I am that way about New York. In fact, "that way" is the precise modern idiom to describe my feelings.

If I am in France of Frankfort or Franconia Notch, it is New York I think about. I might stand on the steps of Sacre Coeur with the sun pouring down on Utrillo's narrow streets and cry out at the breathtaking beauty of Paris, but I know that in my heart my line is the skyline of Manhattan. When I took a boat from the "Tower of Tears" in Amsterdam where the women wept while Hendrik Hudson sailed forth, did I dwell on those ancient historical days? No, indeed. I thought of the mouth-watering thrill I have every time I see the magnificent bridge spanning the river that bears his name. I get a bigger message from the pigeons that raise havoc with my air conditioners than the famed feathered friends at St. Marks.

I know there is loveliness and excitement and mystery all over the world. I also know I can find it in one square block in New York, and there are others like me. Others who get a catch in their throats looking out a window at twilight, or who get furious at the Fifth Avenue parades halting traffic, but find themselves humming along with marching bands and buying balloons for the children. And there are those of us who hear no sound sweeter than the crunching leaves of autumn under foot in Central Park. And on and on and on. It is to all of these loyal lovers of Peter Stuyvesant's town I now appeal. We must band together to perpetuate this glorious shrine and see that nothing more is taken from it.

I remember when my husband, Martin Gabel, and I were part of the Mercury Theatre with Orson Welles. Then the Broadway arena was a network of active playhouses and if half the productions were thrown to the lions a man could pass a hat along Shubert Alley and raise enough money to start another. Today, one failure can send a person of creative talent into the insurance business. And we all know what has happened to the out-of-towner who used to come to New York to "see the shows." Now he comes to find out if his cousin who has a dubious connection can, for fifty dollars, get him a place to stand on the same block where "My Fair Lady" is playing.

We have allowed our Broadway theatre to shrink. We stood still while Hollywood took our writers and our actors and the unions took the rest. And only the energy and adventure off-Broadway may keep us alive.

The baseball picture is even dimmer. We have lost the ball game and the coast has won. And if we didn't have the enthusiasm to hold on to two great clubs, I guess we deserve to lose. The West is a young insatiable, ambitious giant, --and the East has behaved like an ostrich.

And now, to put the cherry on the Charlotte Russe, California has cornered the television empire. Here we sat all dressed up in our grey flannel suits, our hands so filled with contracts we didn't feel the electrons slipping through our fingers and heading West--where studios were being built for them; and red carpets were being laid out; and whole cities were being designed to cater to their every wave length. Today, eighty per cent and more of television is born within shooting distance of Forest Lawn.

In some ways it is a comment on our television times that the best that is "live" comes from our town and that we are permitting that life to be squeezed out of us until we are nothing but endless ribbons of celluloid in California cans. Maybe it is true that the brisk climate that prodded our forebears into building a nation has become too well heated to build a network with blood coursing through its veins. If so, we earn the ignominious defeat of being stacked up in Hollywood projection rooms.

But I am a die-hard. I won't believe it until the last live actor is taken kicking and screaming to Sunset Blvd. and describing what he sees en route on "Wide Wide World." CITIZENS OF THE EAST, I IMPORE YOU, wake up before they take everything we have through the Holland Tunnel.

SOUND! SAFE! SECURE SAVINGS

Your Forest Ranger

By Larry Stotz

In a few weeks another class of young people will enter our colleges and universities to start training for their careers. Some will have only the vaguest notions of what the professions they have chosen have to offer in material rewards and personal satisfactions. Not all can even give a good definition of the word, "profession."

The late Justice Brandeis of the U. S. Supreme Court aptly defined a profession as being, "First, an occupation for which the necessary preliminary training is intellectual in character, involving knowledge and to some extent learning, as distinguished from mere skill. Second, an occupation which is pursued largely for others and not merely for oneself. Third, an occupation in which the amount of financial return is not the accepted measure of success."

The profession of forestry meets the three basic requirements of Justice Brandeis' definition.

Long ago in Germany, where forestry is an old and honored profession, a forester once said, "The Forest is a blessing of God's creation and to be a servant of the Forest is a fine vocation."

Many generations of German foresters have since learned the truth of this assertion.

One of the things that European foresters who visit America agree upon is the need for more and more foresters in this country, particularly at the "grass roots" level.

The training of a modern forester requires a minimum of four years in a college in which he studies the sciences, humanities, engineering, economics, silviculture, forest management, forest protection and forest utilization. A fifth year of graduate study is highly recommended. The high school graduate who plans to study forestry has the choice of 38 universities and colleges in the United States which offer courses leading to a forestry degree, but only 26 of them are accredited by the Society of American Foresters.

In a profession that is concerned primarily with the conservation of renewable natural resources the forester finds his work to be of great social significance. His success or failure as a forester may be written on the face of the land for generations. The big fire that he failed to stop may destroy a forest, impair a watershed and cripple a forest industry. The wasteland that he reforested may restore a depleted watershed, provide timber for the future and a home for wildlife. The wilderness area that he saved from the axe may furnish inspiration for generations yet unborn.

A dedicated forester will place financial returns secondary to other and less tangible rewards. He will usually find himself in the middle income bracket. He will live in a small town or village or perhaps alone in an isolated spot far removed from modern conveniences.

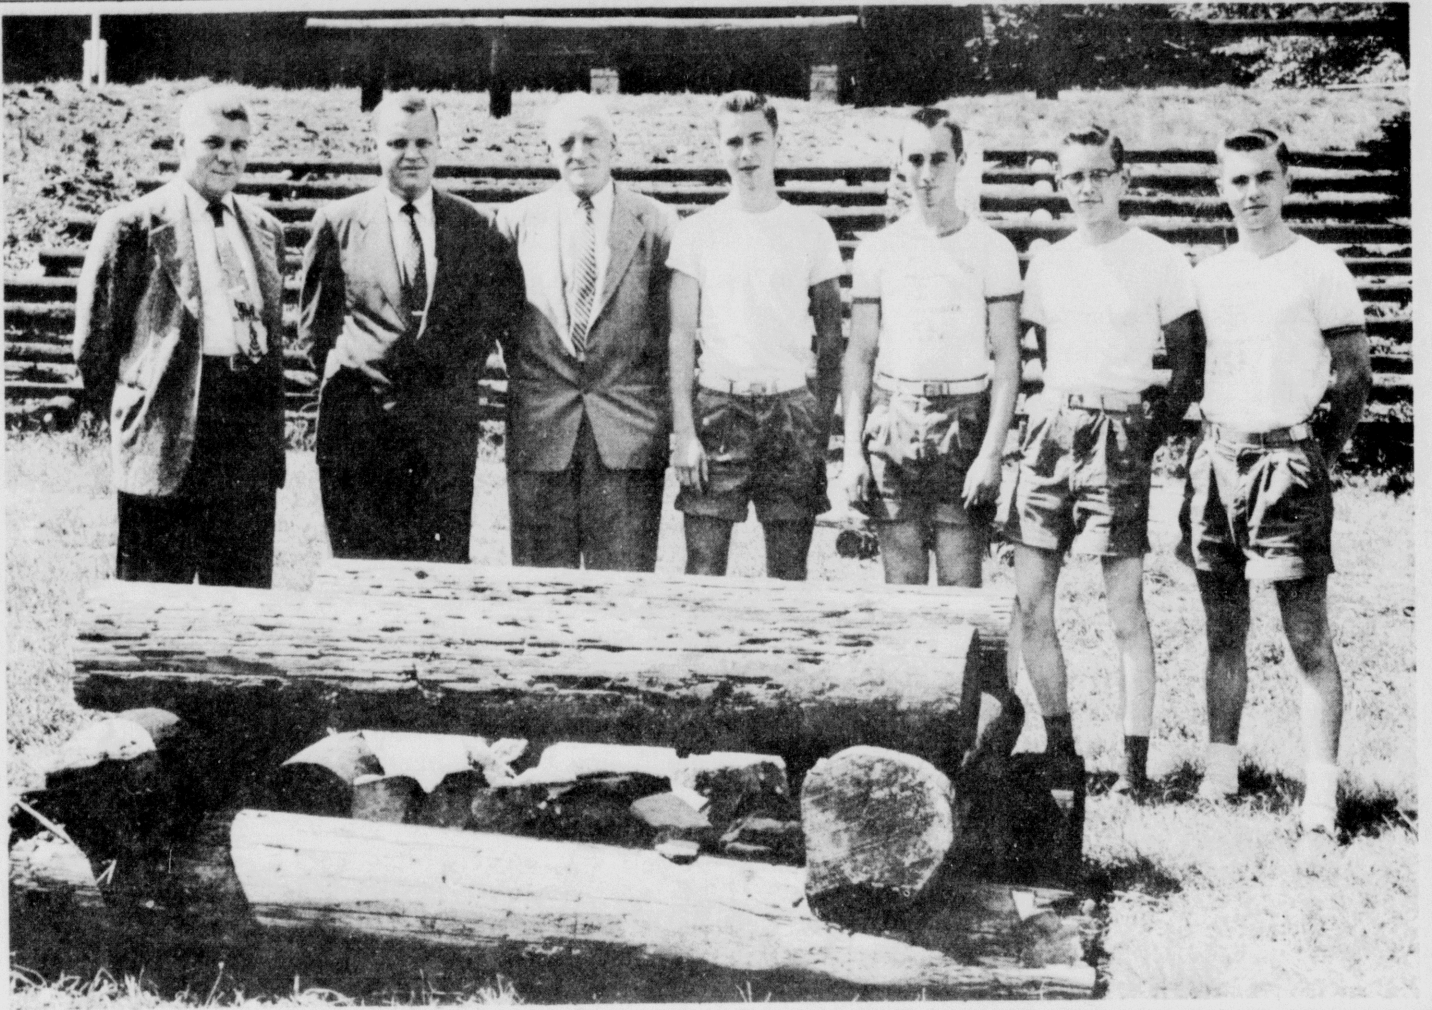

One of his greatest satisfactions will be working with and among the largest and oldest living things - trees. In the fascinating world of the forest he will become intimate with the inter-relationship of all living things. His scientific training will enable him to observe, and appreciate, the intricate and complex world of Nature.

To those unsuited to the way of life of a forester the profession can offer only disappointment; but to those whose aptitudes and capabilities fit them for a career in forestry there can be no more interesting or satisfying work.

"You've Seen The Rest - Now See The Best"

In Brief

A MILLION DOLLARS closer to flood protection and a controlled water supply for the Allegheny valley moved this area when a bill appropriating that much for preliminary Kinzua dam work was signed by the President.

Meanwhile, confusion seems to predominate in some circles. The local daily praises the project in its editorial column and in the same issue slaps it around in an opinionated news story on the front page. And Congressman Gavin who bucked the idea for many costly years, and through three very expensive floods now is handed the bows.

The million will scratch the preliminary surface of moving highways, tracks, and utilities, buying property, and making surveys. It will take the full $100 million to get the big wall up into the air.

IN GOOD CONDITION this morning at Warren General Hospital was Miss Patricia Conklin, 18, of 321 Hickory st., Warren. She was rushed to the hospital about 5 p.m. Tuesday after being found in a state of unconsciousness.

At the time it was believed the girl had been overcome by gas and the fire dept. was summoned for a pneulator. However, after an investigation on Wednesday, it was thought other circumstances might have caused Miss Conklin's condition.

T. K. CREAL, president of the Paramount Furniture Co. in Warren, was elected president of the National Association of Furniture Manufacturers at its convention in Chicago this week.

A HIT AND RUN charge was placed against Stuart Washburn, 420 Chestnut st., Warren, following a two-car collision near the Moose Club on Hickory st. at 4:15 p.m. Saturday.

According to reports Washburn pulled out of a parking space on the west side of Hickory and shot across the street, striking an oncoming vehicle operated by Donald W. Koebly, 113 Biddle st. The former left the scene and proceeded on to Union st. before the pursuing Koebly stopped the violator.

Nearly $150 damage was caused, mainly to the Koebly auto.

STATE POLICE were plagued with a variety of accidents during the past week.

At 7 p.m. last Thursday a 17-year-old Garland boy, John Clancy, received a bruised right leg when struck while riding a bicycle. James Boyle, 72, Titusville, was pulling his car off the left side of the road when he hit the teen-ager seven miles west of Youngsville on Route 27.

A pair of accidents occurred on Saturday, the first taking place at the Lily Pond crossing on Route 6 at Starbrick about 7:20 a.m. Man Cameron, of Winnipeg, Canada, lost control of his auto while coming out of the double curve and rolled over an embankment next to the Whiteway theater. Damage amounted to over $500 and two passengers required treatment for minor injuries.

A Warren man received a broken left hip and his car was damaged to the tune of $950 at 11:30 that evening when he lost control a mile east of Warren on Route 59 and struck a telephone pole. The driver was Charles D. Covell, of 120 N. South st.

Lily Pond became the scene of another accident at 1 a.m. Sunday when Theodore Jones, Clarendon, missed the curve and plowed into the guard rails on the opposite side of the highway. The driver received lacerations of the face and head and a passenger, John Piehuta, 3 Hinkle st., Warren, suffered an abrasion of the lumbar spine.

At 2:50 p.m. Monday Paul Burcher, Richardsville, escaped injury when his auto left the road three miles east of Clarendon on Route 6. The driver stated he fell asleep. About $100 damage resulted.

Craig Washburn, age 6, of 420 Chestnut st., Warren, needed treatment for lacerations of the knee, elbow and hip late Tuesday afternoon after he was struck by a vehicle operated by Eldon Hendrickson of Youngsville, just east of Clarendon. The boy had been throwing apples across the road and was hit when he darted out into the path of the approaching Youngsville car.

IN ACTION taken by the Warren General Hospital board of directors' meeting last week T. K. Creal, II, was elected to a vacancy on the board created by the resignation of James Blomquist; the Erie Credit Exchange was engaged as collection agency for the hospitals' delinquent accounts; it was decided to purchase Asiatic flu shots for hospital personnel on a cost basis; and a resolution was passed praising the medical staff, the administrator and department heads, and the hospital personnel for their efforts in achieving full accreditation for the hospital from the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals.

DOWN MAY COME gasoline prices in this area. One station already has announced lower prices and at least one other plans to offer its customers as much as two cents less per gallon.

"WE FOUND a lot of men in the woods", were the words five-year-old Mary Leuschen used when questioned after she and her seven-year-old brother Larry were found after being lost for about five hours Sunday. The children of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur E. Leuschen, of Erie, caused the search after wandering off from their parents' camp on the Cole Bed rd. near Scandia.

Members of the Russell Volunteer Fire Dept., Russell Saddle Club and Scandia Forest Crew were called out on the search. The children were found by Kenneth Hulings and Kenneth Sorenson about three-quarters of a mile from their camp.

WINNER 13TH AAA
POSTER CONTEST

Development of a spirit of co-operation between all school children and the School Safety Patrol is the first aim of the Warren County Motor Club's safety education program in the new school year.

To launch the program, the Warren County Motor Club will distribute large, colorful posters to schools in Warren County urging youngsters to "Help Your Safety Patrol Help You."

The record which the School Safety Patrol has made throughout the nation proves its effectiveness as a force for reducing traffic deaths and injuries among school children. However, the patrols are not a police force. They must rely on voluntary cooperation from other boys and girls, and that can only come about when the youngsters understand that the patrols are there to help them.

The Motor Club asks parents to stress with their own children the need for obeying signals of the patrols as a supplement to the teaching they will get in school.

AN AUTO DAREDEVIL SHOW has been lined up for race fans at Sugar Grove's Skyline Speedway next Sunday night at 7 p.m. Using nine cars and a motorcycle, Johnny Hardinger, a native of Corry who now lives in Erie, Johnny "Madman" McKinley of Clarion and other drivers of the Crash Kings will entertain racing enthusiasts with exhibitions of stunt driving and crash acts.

LATE SPORT . . .

TEXANS LEAD AGAIN. Youngsville softballers stopped, at least temporarily, the see-saw battle in the City softball circuit last night when they bumped off Culligan's 9 to 6. The soft water lads took over the league Monday when they beat Texas Lunch by an upsetting 16-8 score.

The Texans now stand ahead 10-2, with all games played; Culligan's record is 8-2, with two games with Sheffield and Lacy's remaining; and Sheffield is 7-3.

Tuesday the Texas Lunch team rebounded to take Jones of Sheffield 19-13 as Don Murphy blasted 3 for 4 at the plate.

In the Monday contest Ken Sorenson tossed a nice five-hitter for the water lads and Dick Carlson had a perfect 3-3 with the stick. For Texas Warnie Check hit safely three times. Home runs came off the bats of Schmader and Stewart for Culligan's and Check and Masterson for Texas.

In other action Wednesday night Lacy's downed Nino's.

THE RECORD of the Warren Elks baseball team is one for which Warren can be proud. The boys won 13 and lost seven. Their victims included three powerful area teams, Kinzua, Ludlow, and the Art Metal nine of Jamestown. Kinzua is tied for the lead in the Chautauqua league and the Metals won the Jamestown circuit.

Moniak led the Elks in batting with 34 hits out of 75 times up. Dressler had a .525 average but was up only 40 times. Ken Thompson did the bulk of the mound work for the Elkers.

"A man sits as many risks as he runs."—Henry David Thoreau.

LATE MODEL STOCK CARS will race 50 laps at Skyline Speedway in a Trophy Championship Race next Saturday night. The 50-lap feature race will headline the six-event racing card which will get under way at 8:30 p.m. on the Sugar Grove oval. Sunday's races will be preceded by a stunt driving exhibition by Johnny Hardinger's Crash Kings of Erie.

SWINGING Bill Moniak, Youngsville high senior who batted .453 for the Warren Elks' baseball club this season.

About Re-Assessment

(Editor's Note: The following information has been submitted by Jack Nicholson, of the Warren County chief assessor's office.)

During the course of our workday we are asked many questions about our re-assessment program. In an effort to acquaint the public with the functions of our office and the purpose of the re-assessment, we have answered the most often asked questions in this pamphlet. Since taxes are of major concern to all of us we hope you will find this pamphlet interesting and informative.

WHAT IS RE-ASSESSMENT?

It is an orderly scientific study of all assessments made on all residential, mercantile and industrial real property based upon the use of construction cost data which has been compiled in the past six months by the J. M. Cleminshaw Company, as reflected in Warren County, Pa.

In Warren County there are over 25,000 separate assessments and by June 1959 each will be checked and re-appraised.

* WHY IS IT BEING DONE?

The re-assessment is being done to assure each taxpayer of paying their fair share of the total tax load.

Properties that are assessed too low will be raised just as properties that are assessed too high will be lowered.

Property improvements that have affected market value will be adjusted on the assessment roll.

To keep a well equalized tax base, properties should be re-studied periodically.

Economic obsolescence, physical depreciation and functional depreciation should be re-figured at the end of these periods to assure that each property owner is fairly treated.

Once the new assessment base is correct, the present staff of assessors will be able to keep up with the periodic review of the sections of the county and of classes of property.

* WHY IT IS NECESSARY TO ENTER BUILDINGS

It is necessary to inspect both the interior and exterior parts of each building to determine size, depreciation, class and grade of construction, such as types of foundation, walls, roofs and materials, trim, heating and plumbing. These facts are carefully noted on our record cards.

From this basic information, we compile the cost of reproduction new and the various depreciation allowances, to obtain a sound value.

Other structures, such as porches and garages are added and depreciated accordingly to reach a fair market value.

Market sale comparisons and capitalization are also used where applicable.

DO FURNISHINGS AFFECT THE ASSESSED VALUE?

Even though the inside of a building is inspected, the appraiser DOES NOT consider the value of FURNISHINGS and personal property.

The work is performed in a series of steps or phases as follows:

1. Measure all properties and make an outline sketch on property record card. (Since it is not necessary to enter the home at this time the occupant will not be disturbed by knocking on the door.)

2. Listing property by components as previously described and grade for construction and class and allow for proper physical depreciation. (After listing it will not be necessary to visit the property further.)

3. Office work:
A. Compute ground area of structure.

B. Enter rates from cost data manual by grade and construction.

C. Compute the area by the rate to determine the tentative value of structure less depreciation.

D. Add the appraised value of land to tentative value of structure to arrive at a tentative value of the complete property parcel.

4. At this point a final inspection and a field review is made of all real estate by the Chief Appraiser of the J. M. Cleminshaw Company so that all errors may be corrected and the area adjustments are made, as it applies to that locale, taking into consideration location, obsolescence, architectural qualities, desirability and resale value.

5. All property record cards are then returned for final office computations, thus arriving at a final appraisal value.

6. The final phase is the calculating of the actual assessment by the Chief Assessor.

At the present time it is intended that the J. M. Cleminshaw Company will start in the Borough of Tidioute. All men assigned will carry a letter of identification.

BIRTHDAY HABIT. Horace Crary's great love for the game of golf seems to reach a crescendo on his birthdays, especially those that happen every ten years. On his 75th birthday he celebrated the event by sinking a hole-in-one on the Pinehurst, North Carolina, course.

Last Saturday was his 85th. In as much as his playing of the seventh hole hadn't been very sharp lately he decided to correct that situation and observe his birthday with a single, well executed stroke. He did, and another ace went on the books.

That isn't all. It is the third hole-in-one to be fired on that hole this year, and one of the others, Mrs. Melvin Keller, also was doing it for the second time. Mrs. Jeral Angove sank the third.

Mr. Crary's comment on his hole-in-one was, "It is the first time I played that hole well in two weeks."

Must we learn the hard way?

BEWARE! . . .

OF DIAMOND BARGAINS

There is usually a reason behind a so-called "bargain," otherwise a merchant would not be forced to offer a special price inducement to make a sale. It is a logical assumption that the merchant could not sell for more, what he is now offering for less . . . as he is not motivated by charity, but by profit. Fine diamonds, unlike seasonable, fashionable or perishable merchandise, have a comparatively constant demand and there isn't the necessity to unload them before the market is gone. Be duly skeptical about "slashed diamond values," "half-price sales," "wholesale discounts."

Hats Off to LABOR!

America's RIGHT ARM

The incredible productivity of the American worker is the envy of every nation in the world. It makes us the richest, the strongest, the most progressive people who ever lived. Therefore, it is fitting that once a year we should set aside a day to honor our men-who-produce all the things we need, use, and too-often take for granted. Come Monday, let's all take our hats off to the man who works!

THE PASSION PLAY

There is a rich background to the Passion Play which is being brought to Warren by the Jaycees for three days of next month, September 8, 9, and 10. The little village of Oberammergau, which is a Bavarian town a few miles southwest of Munich, was stricken by the black death in 1633 and as an expression of gratitude when the scourge ended promised to enact the passion and death of Christ every ten years.

This it started to do the following year. The series was changed to decimal years in 1670, and it has been done faithfully except during the Franco-Prussian war, and the two late world wars.

Oberammergau is a village of about 1,700. Almost 700 of them take part in the play as it is given in their own community. It is presented on an outdoor stage, but the audience sits in an auditorium which seats 6,000 who see the play through an oval opening at the end of the auditorium.

The participants include an orchestra of about 50 and a chorus of 46. Music for the play was written by Rochus Dedler, a schoolmaster of the Oberammergau parish in 1814. The earliest text for the play was written by Ettal monks whose monastery is located close to Oberammergau.

The play at home consists of 18 acts, each of which is prefaced by a choral anthem and an orchestral selection, and by a tableaux based on the Old Testament. The tableaux for each act has a theme that will conform with the act to follow. An example is the offering of Isaac as a sacrifice by Abraham which prefaces the Crucifixion.

The chief characters are the Christ, the twelve disciples, Mary, the mother of Jesus, Mary Magdalene, and Martha. They prepare for their parts by playing in many classics during intervening years, and by developing physical characteristics which eliminate the need for artificial make-up. There are no false beards or wigs.

Participants are supposed to respect their parts sufficiently to enact them with deepest reverence and to live lives that will justify their selection. They are chosen by a committee composed of the village priest, burgomaster, village council, and members selected by popular vote. They must be natives of the village and of good moral character. They also must be dramatically capable.

The play is given each Sunday, starting in May, and two or three times during the week. The first act starts at eight o'clock in the morning, and the play continues for eight hours, with an intermission at noon.

The Passion Play is not the life of Christ. It is concerned with the events during His last days on earth, known as Passion week. It is considered the leading survival of the miracle plays which were very common from the 13th to 16th century.

The production to be seen in Warren of course is greatly abbreviated. But the basic theme of the play will be the same and the main acts will be presented with their leading characters. It will last two and a half hours. Eliminated, of course, will be the Old Testament tableaux before each act. And a small stage production can be speeded up as compared with an expansive outdoor production involving hundreds of actors.

With few of us ever able to make the trip to see this rare production, this is an opportunity which may never come again. And the religious value of the play is very obvious.

The play will be seen in Beaty auditorium. Reservations are being made in the lobby of the Columbia theatre because it is more convenient.

BURGESS William E. Rice signed a proclamation Wednesday endorsing the appearance of the Passion Play in Warren next month.

The "Play Time" and "Things To Come" columns in this edition will give you interesting data about the play.

BREAK GROUND. A special ceremony last Thursday evening marked the ground breaking for a new hall for Diamond Grange No. 2027 in Tiona, Mead twp.

The new building will be located on a 13-acre piece of land fronting the Six-Mile rd. just north of Route 6 in Tiona. It will be 30 by 70 feet in size, have a spacious and comfortable meeting room, up-to-date kitchen and rest room.

The Diamond Grange was first organized in Warren County during 1941 and since that time has grown from 52 charter members to an enrollment of 164.

It originally met in the old school-house in Tiona, but in 1949 purchased the building formerly occupied as a Community store. In 1953 a mortgage burning ceremony was held as the Grange had completely paid for its home.

A DINNER HONORING Dan K. Walton, general secretary of the Warren YMCA who is retiring after 40 years service in his profession, was held Monday evening.

The well-known leader is pictured as he acknowledged the tributes made to him by his associates and friends.

Because They Care . . .

By Lenore McIntyre

"We enjoy the work and it is one way of thanking those brave Americans and Allied soldiers who freed the city of Margraten from the Nazis".

These words, spoken humbly and sincerely by the Rev. Dr. Pierre Heynen, Catholic priest and professor from Holland, preface a touching story of "hands across the sea". It is a story of the act of devotion and remembrance by which the graves of American soldiers are perpetually tended by the Dutch people and Father Heynen's own mission of love in visiting bereaved parents of American soldiers to bring them comfort and peace of mind.

Father Heynen, professor of language at Seminary Rolduc, the centuries-old university at Kerkrade, Holland, is one of the founders of the idea of "adoption" by Dutch families of some 20,000 graves of American soldiers who died in action in World War II and were buried at Margraten, Holland. Six miles away, at Henri Chapelle in Belgium, another military cemetery served for interment of 18,000 Americans. No American soldier of World War II lies in German soil. Since the war, however, the remains of many have been returned to their homeland. But the cemeteries at Margraten and Henri Chapelle each continue as the final shelter of some 10,000 American war dead.

The farm home of Father Heynen's parents is near Margraten in the Limburg province. Six miles away lies the German border where the Siegfried Line marked the scenes of battle in 1944, the beginning of the end for the Nazis.

The Dutch priest experienced closely the horror and tragedy of war, saying mass daily in a tent near the cemetery, reading the burial service for more than 21,000 men. He joined the 611th Graves Registration Company in order that no soldier should enter the ground "without a prayer, without the blessing of the grave and the body".

Father Heynen first conceived the idea of "adopting" the graves at Margraten when serving with the American forces as chaplain while the regular Army chaplains were on duty at the front lines, and later, when letters of inquiry from bereaved parents and wives deluged Army authorities. He formed the Dutch civilian committee which fostered the adoption project and within one month after announcement of the program, offers were received to care for every single grave in the vast cemetery. Many Dutch families travel fifty miles to place their floral tributes.

Special Memorial Day services are held annually at the field of white crosses. As many as fifty thousand people attend, including members of the royal family. At the end of the day, when taps are sounded, the graves are literally blanketed with colorful Dutch tulips.

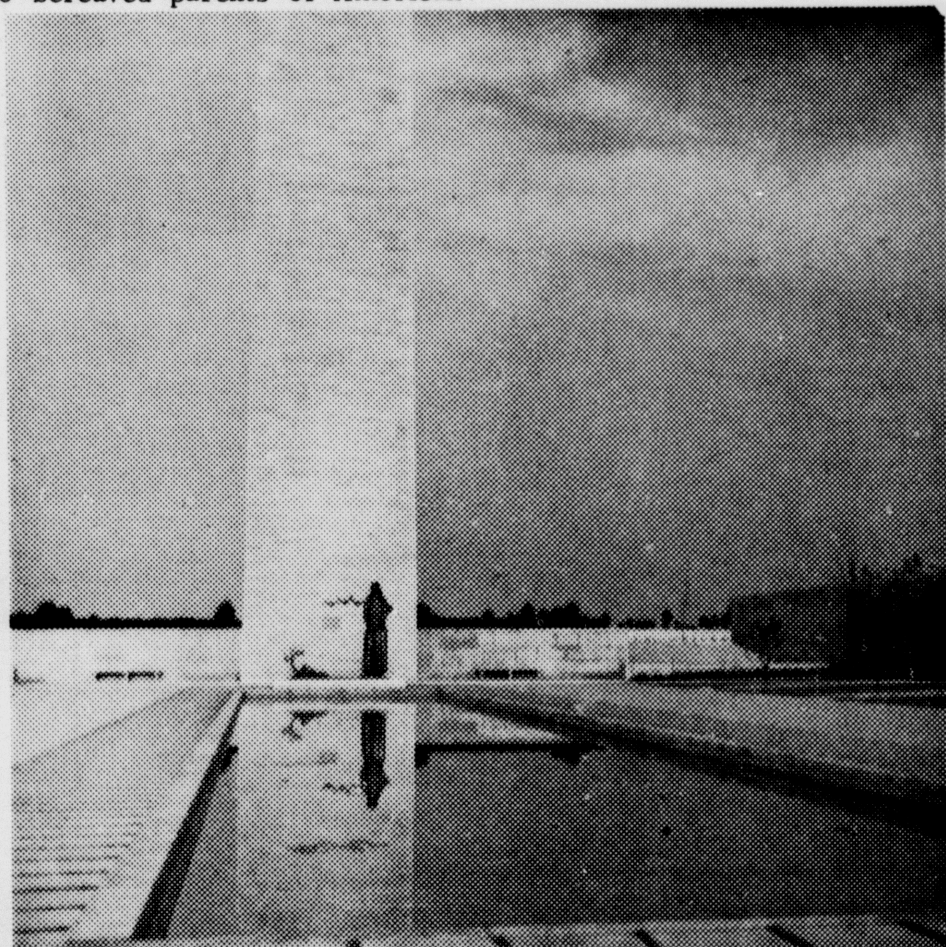

In his book, "Crosses In the Wind", J. J. Shoman devotes an entire chapter to the work of Father Heynen. Shortly after its publication, the Dutch priest was invited by the American Legion and Gold Star Mothers to visit the United States. He made his first trip in 1947, contacting hundreds of families, and making appearances on radio, television and at public meetings. He was received by the President of the United States, then Harry S. Truman, and decorated for services rendered the American government.

It was during this mission of comfort that Father Heynen first visited the Christy families in Tidouate. Captain Ralph L. Christy, 120th Inf., 30th Div., Penna., killed in action March 25, 1945, lies in the field of white crosses at Margraten. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Christy, are Tidouate residents as are his wife and son, Mrs. Mary Christy and Tommy.

Last week, Father Heynen again visited the Christys spending several days with his American friends. He speaks English fluently, as becomes a professor of languages; his FATHER HEYDEN whose mission is to bring comfort and peace of mind to bereaved parents of American soldiers buried at Margraten, Holland.

MARGRATEN MILITARY CEMETERY entrance is marked by this beautiful monument and Peace Statue with reflecting pool at base.

sprightly conversation is liberally sprinkled with American "slang" picked up from his GI friends; and he does a good imitation of "the Southern accent". He never ceases to be amazed at the abundance that is America. "You eat so good", he repeated with every clang of the dinner bell. He was introduced to "corn on the cob", falling in love at first bite, and hoped to secure some seed corn to take back to his parents' farm at Margraten. If Father Heynen can coax it to grow, a few Dutch tulip beds may have to move over to make room for American "roasting ears".

WE REMEMBER is the thought which motivates the Dutch people to "adopt" American military graves and decorate them with flowers. Even the children are proud to place their colorful bouquets of tulips at the foot of the white cross, one of many thousands in the vast cemetery.

LEAGUE LEADERS COMBINE TO PLAY JAMESTOWN

Kinzua and Kennedy, front runners in the Chautauqua County Association, will combine forces next Saturday night to take on the Jamestown Bombers at Jamestown's Municipal Stadium. Game time is 8 p.m.

CATS WIN AND LOSE

Ludlow's Wildcats traveled to Jamestown last Saturday night and were dumped by the Bombers, 12 to 3, in a game which saw Ludlow fielders commit 8 errors and Jamestown fielders, 5 miscues. Gray, Holden and Wilson pitched for Ludlow. Thompson caught.

At Wildcat Park on Sunday the Cats beat St. Marys 12 to 6. Labesky and Juban was the Ludlow battery until the seventh when Gray and Federko took over those chores. Basil Kulka blasted a homerun for the winners.

The Cats now have won 20 and dropped only 4. Sunday they will take on the Marlin-Rockwell nine from Jamestown at Wildcat Park at 3 p.m., and Monday the Cats will play the Jamestown Moose at Ludlow. Those two games round out the season for the Wildcats.

SWIMS ACROSS LAKE

Pat Madden swam across Lake Chautauqua from Prendergast Point to Midway in 36 minutes 18 seconds last Sunday in the fifth annual Conquer Lake Chautauqua swim. The crossing was Madden's third in three years and 2 minutes 30 seconds faster than his last year's time. Official placements in the meet which attracted 228 swimmers have not been tabulated.

ELKS END SEASON

Warren Elks shaded Kinzua 9 to 7 last Saturday to close out their 1957 baseball campaign. They won 13 and dropped 7 during the season. Ken Thompson went the distance on the hill for the Elks and Dick Mancuso caught.

KINZUA PLAYOFF LIKELY

With only one more scheduled game remaining, Kinzua and Kennedy are tied for the lead in the Chautauqua County Association with 15 wins and 2 setbacks. Kinzua faces Falconer (4 and 13) next Sunday and Kennedy takes on Onoville (10 and 6).

If both teams should win, a playoff would decide the 1957 league champion.

Last Sunday Kinzua scored six times in the sixth inning to overcome a 3 to 0 lead and downed Onoville 12 to 6. Don Mohnney hurled for Kinzua and Carl Peterson caught.

TE LA DI O

DEAD SEA SCROLLS TO BE DRAMATIZED BY CBS

Ten years ago Arab shepherds discovered the "Dead Sea Scrolls" in the Holy Land. Since that time scholars have been translating and evaluating the scrolls. CBS-TV will present a play by Irv Tunnick dramatizing the discovery of the ancient documents.

"Buried 2,000 Years: The Dead Sea Scrolls", will be the name of the October 2 seasonal premiere for the "Armstrong Circle Theatre" series.

Joseph Yadin, member of an Israeli theatrical troupe and son of Professor Elazar Sukenik, will portray the role of his father in the CBS vehicle. Professor Sukenik, now deceased, was head of the archeological department at Hebrew University and risked his life to obtain the first three scrolls.

PAY TELEVISION LOOMS LARGER ON HOME SCREENS

Pay-television may soon be a reality for American viewers who will then have the opportunity to choose from among a variety of free and paid TV programs, minus commercials.

More than 600 communities in the U.S. and Canada already have closed circuit networks. Three principal systems of pay-TV have been developed and tested. These are: Phonevision, Subscriber-Vision and Telemeter.

Each is a device manufactured by electronics corporations which, when attached to the television set, permits the reception of selected programs paid for directly by the viewer. Telemeter has a coin-box into which the viewer deposits his money before the program can be received. In the other two systems, an IBM type card is punched to unscramble the signal and the set owner is billed at the end of the month as he is for other utilities.

The three systems can be transmitted via public utility lines or on conventional broadcasting channels.

The first wired service to go into business will start next Tuesday in Bartlesville, Oklahoma. This is watched very closely because it involves the battle which is shaping up between broadcasters and the theatres.

"Best In Men's Wear"

WHY HIDE IT?

We see no advantage in having beauty if you can't see it. We see no sense in advertising the glories of your scenery if much of the best is hidden. We also wonder how much good it does for us to keep worrying the subject if no one will listen or act.

We enjoy motoring and photography, especially in an open car. We also enjoy the use of a good pair of binoculars on such occasions. For these reasons it seems impractical to do nothing about clearing the underbrush and thinning the trees where they isolate long stretches of highway.

Unfortunately the road too seldom follows a major stream. When it does so in the cradle of a huge, wooded valley, the drive is glorious.

We have one of the most ideally equipped areas in the nation for such beauty, but the highways are solined with heavy shrubbery that you can drive for miles along the river and seldom catch a brief glimpse of it. When you do, those in the car often will exclaim, "Isn't that a gorgeous scene," and reach for their color film.

It would do no harm to the forests to make such scenes almost continual through our valleys. The underbrush could be cleared along the highway with no loss, and we have enough trees in this area to suffer no harm if a few were trimmed from the roadway.

However, we doubt if many trees would need be cut. If the heavy underbrush were chopped out, the remaining tree trunks would do little to obscure the view, and in fact might lend it an appropriate setting. We can show the highway department or the forestry men miles of such road. It would attract thousands of tourists, if that is important, but even more satisfying is the pleasure we natives would gain in our own area.

GAME SUPPLY

We have done very little scouting for game this summer, but in the usual haunts where we often see rabbits and birds, there are few scampering about. One of the few squirrels we have seen in recent weeks was a big fox climbing a tree in Warren.

The nut tree areas where we have spent our time usually have squirrels scampering among them all summer, but this year the nearest thing to a squirrel we have seen was a golfer. However, others say that where the feed is good they have seen many squirrels, so perhaps you will have grey and black ones for targets this fall.

As for rabbits, we see few of them anywhere, including the highway where the toll seems to be mostly opossum. Maybe bunny is getting smart and hopping elsewhere, or during traffic breaks.

Deer hunters are eyeing that apple crop and licking their chops. Deer should be fat this fall, they say. And flavored a la pomme.

GET ONE

Incidentally, if you are planning on some of that early shooting which comes along next week, a new license will be required. Don't try shooting a chuck, coon, or grackle with a 1956 tag. No game warden will like it.

TOO MANY

There was a young lady in Abington Who found much pleasure in gardening. But to her dismay, In her truck patch one day, She saw 42 deer and no warden. Now Abington numbers 30,000, With 15 square miles of housing, And because it's near Philly, It seems very silly That deer will use it to browse in.
